

From Sarah Brown McCulloch's Guilford: A Walking Guide (2012):

Ambrose Benton, 94 State Street, Colonial, 1798.

This was originally a one-story house which, during Benton's residency, sheltered his wife, Mary Evarts, and seven children. The second story is a twentieth-century addition (1909), but the overhang and rebuilt center-chimney are faithful to the eighteenth-century Colonial style. In 1982 modern sash was replaced by 12/12 sash like the original.
